

BUSINESS PLATINUM REWARDS CARD

First-year fee waiver

Final offer rules · October 24, 2025 · Card Products — Dana Whitfield

THE WAIVER

Year one

Under the Business Platinum Rewards Card new customer first-year fee waiver, the first-year annual fee for new customers is 0.

Window

Offer dates are Campaign Operations' call and land in Yuki's go-live note on launch day — every piece of copy quotes that note rather than freezing dates here early.

AFTER YEAR ONE

Year-two renewal is where the waiver pays for itself: the fee returns, the perks have already done the selling, and the retention model (Grace's team) prices the cohort accordingly.

Customer-facing answers about the fee after year one, mid-year product changes, and keeping the waiver are support QA's script — the approved call in the case library is the reference, not this deck.

ELIGIBILITY & RETENTION

Who

The Business Platinum Rewards Card new customer first-year fee waiver offer is for new customers only.

Which accounts

The Business Platinum Rewards Card new customer first-year fee waiver applies to new accounts opened within the promotion window.

Keeping it

Retention conditions are part of the offer terms and belong to the servicing script — support QA owns the drilled answer.

WHY PLATINUM, WHY NOW

Platinum is the relationship anchor: operators with heavy travel and advertising spend consolidate here first, and the rest of their banking follows.

Waiving the first year removes the one objection the premium segment actually raises. The perks sell themselves once the card is in hand.
