

2024 Business Savings Rate Review

Year-end review of the business savings rate card and the 2025 concept slate.

Year-end read on the 2024 rate card, plus the concept slate the pricing group carried into 2025 planning.

Prepared by: Marcus Bell · Savings Pricing · November 20, 2024

Reviewed with: Priya Raman · Deposit Products

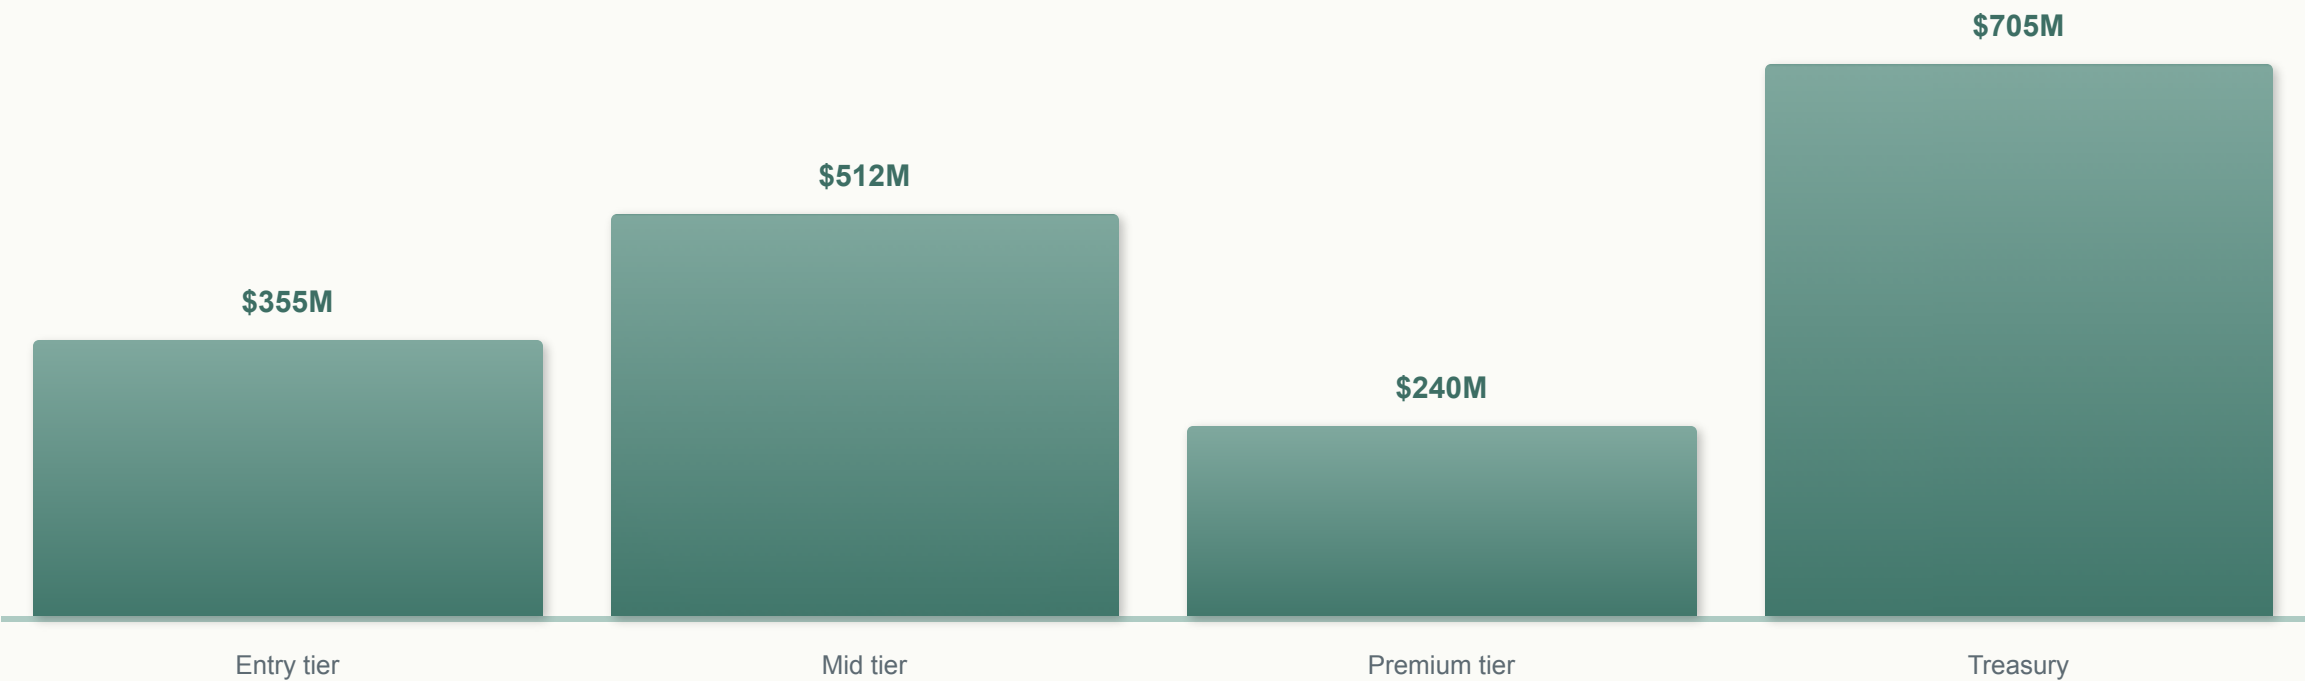

Distribution: savings pricing working group.

2024 review inputs — business savings rate card

PRODUCT	2024 REVIEW INPUT	NOTE
Business Bronze Saver (concept)	1.75%	Entry concept modeled for a 2025 launch decision
Silver Saver Account	2.3%	Flat rate; a tiered structure was only a study item in 2024
Gold Saver Account	deferred	Tier structure under separate review in the January 2025 cycle
Emerald Saver Account	2.9%	Held from the spring 2024 cycle
Platinum Reserve Account (concept)	4.4%	Premium concept, contingent on the servicing model
"Gold Plus" (concept)	4.6%	Investment-tier concept; naming not settled in 2024

Review inputs are modeling positions, not published terms; the January 2025 pricing committee makes the calls.

Deposit mix — 2024 balances by family

2023 baselines and account-level detail are in the appendix workbook — Savings Pricing.

2025 concept slate

- The entry concept ("Bronze") goes to a Q1 2025 launch decision — pricing to be set at decision time, not from this review.
- The investment-tier concept ("Gold Plus") advances to product definition; Hana Suzuki consulting on the sweep design.
- An enhanced Silver tier is a study item for mid-2025 — no structure or threshold was modeled in this cycle.
- Treasury invitational products are reviewed on the treasury desk's own calendar and are out of scope here.

Outcomes & next steps

- Rate-card inputs above go to the January 2025 pricing committee — Marcus Bell.
- Priya Raman asked for a servicing-cost read on the premium concept before any 2025 commitment.
- Filed to the savings pricing working group drive under the 2024 review cycle.
- Next full review: the November 2025 cycle.