

QUARTERLY BUSINESS REVIEW

Referrals & Acquisition — Q3 2025 readout

2025-10-09 · Growth Marketing · Prepared for the quarterly business review
Sources: acquisition warehouse Q3 close · desk case metrics · risk partnership summary

FUNNEL

Q3 referral funnel

The soft spot is the middle: opens hold, application starts slip. Creative fatigue is the working theory — the invite templates have not changed since spring.

CHANNELS

Where referrals come from

CHANNEL	SHARE OF QUALIFIED REFERRALS	QoQ	NOTE
In-app share sheet	46%	−2pt	still the workhorse
Copied link	31%	+1pt	steady
Branch-assisted	14%	+3pt	third straight quarter of growth
Email invite	9%	−2pt	template fatigue, see funnel page

Channel attribution from the acquisition warehouse; branch-assisted counts hand-keyed codes at the desk.

COHORT QUALITY

Referred accounts keep outperforming organic

+6pt

d90 retention vs organic cohort
consistent with H1

11 days

median time-to-fund, referred organic: 16 days

8.2

support contacts per 100 accounts organic: 9.7

Referred customers arrive warmer and fund faster. This is the argument for keeping referral spend growing ahead of paid.

WATCH ITEMS

Three things we are watching into Q4

- Aging between application and funding is lengthening — the desk sees it in follow-up call volume, the warehouse sees it in cohort curves.
- Same-address flags ticked up again; the risk partnership continues and the review queue is staffed for it.
- The product-page rebuild remains queued behind the promo freeze — page traffic is flat and launch-season comms will need to route around it.

LOOKING AHEAD

Q4 setup

The Q4 consumer refresh proposal is in flight and gets its own review — offer terms and numbers live with that proposal and with the launch communications, not in this readout. Appendix workbooks (funnel detail, channel cuts, cohort curves) are in the QBR drive folder.

Questions on the numbers: Growth analytics. Questions on Q4 terms: wait for the launch communications.