Referral Superweek

One week. Every qualified referral pays. No caps.

THE CONCEPT

One week

Suspend the per-product bonus caps for one calendar week

Our best referrers hit their annual caps and stop. For one loud week, the ceiling comes off: every referral that qualifies, pays. The scarcity is the marketing — it runs once, it gets a countdown, and the sharers who carry the program get a week where their reach is the only limit.

MECHANICS OUTLINE

Only the cap moves

Qualifying rules untouched

Eligibility, qualifying deposits, and screening all run exactly as they do today. This is not a terms rewrite — one lever, one week.

Console flag

Ops sets a campaign-week flag so the cap check passes during the window; everything downstream behaves normally.

Comms burst

Countdown in-app, one email, branch table cards. Creative reuses the existing referral kit with a Superweek overlay.

Ops has not sized the console change and the flag behavior is unconfirmed.

PROJECTED LIFT

What the August model says

The honest caveat: cost is uncapped by construction. The p90 is a model output, not a ceiling – which is exactly why this needs finance in the room before it goes anywhere.

August model, unreviewed. Assumes current qualification rates hold under burst volume.

THE ASK

Three reviews before this becomes a plan

- ✦ Risk pre-read. An uncapped week attracts exactly the patterns the receive window exists to pace — risk gets first veto, not last.
- ✦ Finance. Cost is uncapped by construction; without a hard budget stop this does not ship, full stop.
- ✦ Legal. One-week terms overlay on four live offer descriptions needs a T&Cs pass.

Pre-read target: 2025-09-08. If any of the three says no, the concept dies quietly and we keep the countdown creative for something else.
